Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

It has come to my attention that you are on the committee to review taxes for FCC communications. I have just learned that you are currently looking into raising the taxes again.

This prompted me to write you and let you know how I feel. Stop raising the taxes every time someone feels the need. Government keeps nickel and diming the public so we can no longer afford anything.

Some in government may feel a buck here and there won't hurt anyone but in the end the economics of these actions effect everyone.

I know that I am only one voice but I do vote and I always try to keep my expenses to a minimum.

Thank yo for your time George Wilson III

Sincerely,

George Wilson
